However many people say so in many ways, do we take notice? If God said so in His word, would we take notice? These signs are easy to read but the End Times Signs are not so easy as they require God the Holy Spirit to point them out to us and help us to understand them in today's political, religious and social context..

We can, with Divine help, see what God's prophetic time calendar looks like. We can with prayer and Biblical study understand the signs that herald the Second Coming of our Lord, Jesus Christ and these shine a light onto the cosmic event that precedes His return and that will stun the world, namely the Rapture of the Church.

In this newsletter we will look at several relevant events, all of which are part of these Signs that the return of Jesus for His Bride is near.

These must begin with Israel, because Israel is key to God's plan of salvation and the final defeat of the devil. There are two parts to this:-

Israel, the Key to God’s plan of Salvation

The Moedim – God’s appointed Feasts

Then we must consider the Church of God, as it has a role to play in the salvation of Israel and in reaching the world with the gospel of Jesus Christ. The End Times signs concern firstly, the Church being hated and suffering because Jesus experienced these, and secondly the genuineness or otherwise of the Church’s faith and obedience and lastly the cry of the Jewish believers for a Church that understands Scripture from a Hebraic standpoint.

War on the Saints

Lastly, we must catch up with the Covid Pandemic and the effects on World economies, governments, and global plans for a One World rule.

The Great Awakening

“Whether you attribute the quote to Mark Twain, Winston Churchill or Jonathan Swift, the fact is that ‘a lie can get halfway around the world before the truth can even get its boots on.’ This age-old adage took on new life when a lie invented by Palestinian sources spread like wildfire around the globe,” said Maurice Hirsch, director of Legal Strategies at PMW. ISRAEL, THE KEY TO GOD’S PLAN OF SALVATION

Introduction

Israel is a hot topic in the Media and stories about Israel and her relationship with Palestinians, Egypt, Iran, Syria and other Arab nations evoke feelings of hatred or indignation depending upon your political, religious or racial prejudices. For example, in the USA, (according to World Israel News online 25th July 2020), The Democratic Party released a draft of its party platform on Wednesday, with new left-leaning policies regarding Israel and the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. The final version of the party platform will be adopted officially next month at the Democratic National Convention in Milwaukee. Leading Democrats like Bernie Sanders, Joe Biden and Ilhan Omar are outspoken critics of Israel. American 'Peace Groups' including a Jewish group back the Democrat policy but say that it doesn't go far enough.

Progressive Democrats, according to Israel Hayam news online 26th July 2020, praise anti-Semitic groups for a letter censuring Israeli sovereignty. The "supporting organizations" include those related to the BDS movement, and another linked to the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, designated a terror group by the US and EU.

Democrat Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez (N.Y.) praised the support by at least 10 anti-Semitic groups for a letter issued by her and signed by other Democrats, The Washington Free Beacon recently reported, citing "an internal email circulated to House Democrats." The "supporting organizations" listed on the letter include ones related to the anti-Israel BDS movement, including the US Campaign for Palestinian Rights, American Muslims for Palestine, American Friends Service Committee, Churches for Middle East Peace and Defence for Children International-Palestine.

A final example of virulent antisemitism is the online abuse and media broadcast of Louis Farrakhan secretary, Ishmael Muhammad, who has defends his boss' shameless Jew-hatred, expounding on the bizarre anti-Semitic conspiracies that comprise the 'Nation of Islam's' so-called theology. (Louis Farrakhan Sr., formerly known as Louis X, is an American religious leader and political activist. He is the leader of the Nation of Islam, an organization which the Southern Poverty Law Centre describes as black nationalist and a hate group).

United with Israel on-line news report says "Following notorious hate-preacher Louis Farrakhan's anti-Semitic Fourth of July diatribe, Nation of Islam National Secretary Ishmael Muhammad rushed to defend Farrakhan's conspiracies, blood libels, and outright lies about the Jewish people. Among Muhammad's outrageous claims is that Jews "invested in the Ku Klux Klan, ... [and] sold sheets, guns, and ropes to the Klan." "Muhammad also claimed that the proposed COVID-19 vaccine is part of a plan to cull the world's population in accordance with a plan devised by former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. Muhammad also praised Farrakhan's defenders, such as DeSean Jackson, Ice Cube and Sean "Puffy" Combs."

Whilst in any democratic country people have a right to express their opinion, it is not acceptable for anyone to express lies or disinformation, to twist the truth for political or religious reasons or for personal gain. Unfortunately, this is what happens all the time when the subject is

Israel. From the United Nations, the Arab League, The EU to BLM spokesmen, BDS groups to the other nations like Iran to Palestinian terrorist groups like Hamas. A simple example of outright lies and a libel against Israel is that broadcast on social media and the internet by Hamas and concerned an illegal building erected by Palestinians in Hebron that suddenly became a "COVID-19 Health Centre" as Palestinian corona propaganda war against Israel continues unchecked. In an online article by Yakir Benzion, (United With Israel) he revealed that An Israeli watchdog group that monitors Palestinian media says Palestinians are now trying to cover up illegal private construction by claiming that Israel deliberately destroyed a "COVID-19 health centre." This, of course, went viral among PA supporters and activists. The truth is that PMW researchers discovered that Israeli authorities knocked down an illegal structure in Hebron that was erected without a building permit. The owner originally said the building would be an automobile show room.

United with Israel comments " Quick to smell an opportunity to manipulate public opinion that is sensitive to anything related to the global pandemic, Palestinian sources posted on social media that Israel had deliberately destroyed a COVID-19 testing centre located in Hebron, which is currently a hotspot for COVID-19 cases.

Knowing that people reading social media would not know the difference, the Palestinians added a computer graphic image showing a "COVID-19 Health Centre" in the same general shape as the illegal building, but with the sign in English only, even though health centres belonging to the Palestinian Authority have signs in Arabic – the local language!!"

There are daily examples of similar lies, libels and disinformation aimed at raising tensions in the Middle East and destabilising Israel, most reported on online news platforms.

The nation of Israel

A nation and its people cannot be understood or appreciated without knowing its history. This applies to Israel more than to any other nation in the world. It applies particularly to the continuing conflict in the Middle East. Unless they are placed within their historical context, current events can provoke a distorted reaction and one that is not true.

No other nation has such a history. The nation of Israel has on numerous occasions been hated, persecuted and harassed. It has and is being threatened with attempts to annihilate its people. It has been the subject of a Holocaust in which over 6million Jews were brutally abused, ill-treated and murdered during the Second World War. No other nation has such a history, and none come close. Israel as a nation are a people who during 2000 years of Diaspora have stayed together in a unique way, with a deep longing and eternal hope of being able to return to Jerusalem. Every Pesach they would greet each other with the words 'next year in Jerusalem'

They have been hunted from one country to another, thrown out of England, France, Spain in the past, and forced out of Russia and most Moslem countries today. They have had their possessions confiscated, their dignity and honour taken from them and their enemies have accused them of the most horrific crimes to justify their hatred of them. Despite all this they have retained their integrity and hope, particularly in the return of the diaspora to the Promised Land and Jerusalem.

In 1988 Hamas issued a manifesto containing 36 articles, all of which promote the basic Hamas objective of the destruction of Israel, along with a declared Jihad against Jewish usurping of Moslem land, the rejection of a negotiated peace settlement and incitement of anti-Semitic actions. Since then, and more particularly in the past five years Iran and its proxy Hezbollah have made the same threat against Israel also. Israel is now surrounded to the north by Hezbollah (Lebanon), Syria (Russia & Iran) and to the East by Iran and Iraq.

Accepting God's Promise

'This is what the Sovereign LORD says: I will take the Israelites out of the nations where they have gone. I will gather them from all around and bring them back into their own land' (Ezekiel 37:21).

The restoration of the Jewish people to the Land of Israel is a fulfilment of the prophetic scriptures and the restored nation of Israel has a predominant role to play in the final purposes of God among the nations (Isaiah 43:1-7, Ezekiel 36:22-23, Romans 11:15).

The State of Israel

Time and space do not permit a complete and up to date article on the State of Israel, but this is a brief resume to try and set out the facts about Israel as opposed to the myths and lies peddled on social media and by then antisemitic groups and BBC. (For a fuller description see my book "Israel A Sign and a Wonder" and for the detailed legal history and a discussion on the role of Christian Zionism in the Foreign Policies of Britain and America, see David W Schmidt "Partners Together in this Great Enterprise" or The Israel Desk written by Tony Pearce on the Light for the Last Days website.

In May 1948 when Israel became a nation, five Arab armies invaded from the surrounding nations. Over 800,000 Jews from neighbouring countries escaped into Israel and were gradually absorbed. At the same time, according to UN figures, 726,000 Arabs left Israel but were never absorbed into other Arab nations, instead being left in refugee camps despite the huge amount of land available in surrounding Arab nations. Jordan (with British help) invaded and took for them -selves the West Bank, Syria took the Golan Heights and Egypt took the Gaza strip. This left Israel with only 7% of the mandated area! [It is interesting to note that after the 1967 war Israel returned 91% of the land that it gained in defending itself.]

Peace with the Palestine Authority

Israel has offered the Arabs their own state eight times, the last in 2001, but each time has been refused. Also, since 1948 there have been 5 peace plans, but the Palestinians have rejected them all.

In January 2020, President Donald Trump produced a new Peace Plan for Israel and Palestine. Despite early enthusiasm, this too seems to have no possibility of success. The reasons for any lack of Peace Accord are long and varied with blame on both sides and on the USA. Nathan Thrall in his well-written and argued book The Only Language They Understand: Forcing Compromise in Israel and Palestine, published by Metropolitan Books painstakingly records the background to this problem without coming to a definitive single reason for the failure of every peace initiative. From a Christian perspective, however, he omits the fact that ALL the land is Israel's. Its boundaries are CLEARLY RECORDED IN Numbers 34:1-12. (NIV)

The Covenant TO Israel and NOT to Ishmael

God made His covenant with Abraham (Genesis 15:18-21) and repeated it to both Isaac and Jacob (Genesis 26:3-4 & Genesis 35:10-11). The covenant was made with Isaac and Jacob i.e the Hebrews and NOT to either Ishmael or Esau from whom the Arabs are descended. In Genesis 17:19-22 God makes it clear that His covenant is only with the descendants of Isaac, ie Jacob and Israel.

Israel's legal case for Judea and Samaria (the following summary is compiled from an online article written in July, 2017 by CUEI)

Anyone following the Israel-Palestinian conflict for any period will have heard phrases such as, "End Israel's illegal occupation" and "Stop Israel building illegal settlements". The anti-Israel propaganda machine has pumped out these false narratives for so long that many, including the media, politicians, and the international community, now believe these lies to be truth.

Despite this opposing message, it is important to understand that both the "occupation" and "settlements" are fully legal according to international law. In 1949, Jordan (along with four other Arab states) invaded the newly established State of Israel and captured an area of land in the heartland of Israel called Judea and Samaria. Then, in 1950, Jordan annexed the area and called it the "West Bank".

The reason for that name is that it was on the "West Bank" of the Jordan River (you will note the area is actually on the east of Israel). The "West Bank” has never been an official name for the area, in fact, only two countries in the entire world recognised Jordan’s annexation of the area; the United Kingdom (well they would wouldn’t they?) and Pakistan. Despite this, today “West Bank” is used as if it was an official name. The true name for the area is, and always will be “Judea and Samaria”, which is how Israel (and the Bible) refers to the land.

Jordan captured the area in 1949, the Jews were forcibly removed and some even massacred. This was the ethnic cleansing of the land that really took place, not the false claim that Israel is ethnically cleansing Palestinians. Jordan’s act of taking this area of land was illegal. Article 2 of the UN charter forbids the acquisition of territory through war. Thus, Jordan’s acquisition and annexation of the territory was neither recognised by the international community or legal, according to international law.

This is how the situation remained until 1967, when Jordan again initiated war against Israel (along with Syria and Egypt), during the Six Day War. This time, however, the Israel Defence Forces pushed the Jordanian army out of the territory (back to Jordan’s internationally recognised boundaries on the east bank of the Jordan River). Israel then established a military presence in the area as a strategic point to defend itself from further attacks by its neighbour. While Jordan’s annexation of the area was illegal according to international law because it invaded and took land without provocation, Israel’s defensive acquisition of land is fully legal.

Alan Dershowitz, Law Professor at Harvard University, and an expert on the Israel-Palestinian conflict, explains that, according to article 51 of the UN charter, military occupations are clearly permitted under international law following an attack by a neighbouring state. This means Israel has every right to retain military control of this area “until a meaningful peace is achieved and all terrorism against it (Israel) ceases”.

Evidently, no peace treaty has ever been reached with the Palestinians and the terrorism, incited by the Palestinian leadership, continues against Israeli civilians to this day. Therefore, Israel is under no legal obligation to leave. After Israel regained control of Judea and Samaria in 1967, Israeli civilians began returning to the land from which they were forcibly removed and began building civilian communities in the area once again. And this is where the false argument about settlements occurs.

The claim is that the establishment of Jewish communities in Judea and Samaria is in violation of the Fourth Geneva Convention of 1949, which states that an occupying power may not forcefully transfer a population into occupied territory. This was a provision written in the shadow of World War II and the Holocaust, intended to protect innocent civilians from extermination, slave labour or colonisation during time of war.

However, Israel in no way violated this law. Israeli Jews moved to Judea and Samaria of their own free will. The towns and cities established were built and funded by the civilian population, therefore, the Israeli government in no way violated the Fourth Geneva Convention. So, who has the rightful claim to Judea and Samaria? Well, lawfully, Israel has the strongest claim to the land.

It was the Balfour Declaration (1917) that earmarked the area including Judea and Samaria as the future "national home for the Jewish people". This was determined by the League of Nations (1920), the San Remo agreements (1920) and the British Mandate (1922), in addition to being approved by the US Congress (1922). These were the last international laws made regarding Judea and Samaria. Therefore, in the absence of any other laws, these laws still apply today, making Israel's presence legal and valid.

In 1995, the Palestinian Authority, under Yasser Arafat, signed the Oslo Accords with Israel. This document was also co-signed by the current day President of the Palestinian Authority, Mahmoud Abbas. This was an internationally recognised agreement to divide jurisdiction of the territory between Israel and the newly created Palestinian Authority. Under this agreement, Israelis have full jurisdiction to live and build on the designated 60% of the territory. Therefore, any building in this territory is completely legitimate under international law through the Oslo Agreement.

Unfortunately, the United Nations has passed resolutions on multiple occasions that label Israel's activity in Judea and Samaria as illegal. In the year 2019/20 the UN passed 13 Resolutions against Israel and only 5 against the rest of the world. The most recent resolution was in July 2020. It is important to note that the United Nations is a body that is supposed to act according to international law, but when it comes to Israel, they seem to flout the rules. This is because UN resolutions are voted for by committees made up of multiple nations. Often these committees are dominated by nations that are anti-Israel. Even the UK has been known to criticise Israel at the UN, but thankfully that trend is now changing, and both the US, UK and others have recently spoken out against the UN bias against Israel.

Despite all the evidence, Israel continues to be condemned for its actions by many in the international community. This is because of the anti-Semitism that exists against the Jewish people within these nations. As far as international law is concerned, Israel's legal right to dwell in Judea and Samaria is as solid as the hills on which they build their homes.

The Prophet Isaiah (66:8) asks a rhetorical question "can a nation be born in a day" the answer is YES. God performed a miracle, in a day!

On Nov. 29, 1947, the United Nations General Assembly had passed a resolution calling for Palestine to be partitioned between Arabs and Jews, allowing for the formation of the Jewish state of Israel. On 14th May 1948 Israel raised its flag over the Land!

Religious freedom in Israel

In Israel, Christians, like the followers of several other religions, are given the full protection of the law, their holy places, including churches, are guaranteed security under the 1967 "Protection of Holy Places Law". This protection applies, not just to the major denominations (Judaism, Islam, Christianity), but to numerous minority groups.

THE MOEDIM – GOD’S APPOINTED FEASTS

How often do we look at the picture rather than at the person? The Moedim are the Feasts of Israel and are set by God at HIS appointed time. These Feasts are all about Jesus and so both for the Jews and for the gentiles we are invited by God to look at Jesus, His precious Son and the world’s only Saviour. If we are religious people then we will look only at the Feast. In so doing we miss the person of Jesus and hence lose the whole prophetic point of the Feast. Not only are the Feasts specifically set by God in three main groups, relating to key events in the relationship between God and Israel but they are also visual aids to show Christians what the Jews already know but what is now, by virtue of the ‘One New Man’ the prophetic promise of God to the Church. The Jews didn’t invent the Feasts, God did when He brought the Hebrews out of Egypt, and they are with us until Jesus returns to earth at His second coming, after which only Trumpets will be celebrated in recognition and thanksgiving of Jesus completed work on the cross. God instructed the children of Israel through Moses to keep these Feasts. In Leviticus 23:2,4 we read “the feasts of the Lord which you shall proclaim to be holy convocations, these are my feasts...These are the feasts of the Lord, holy convocations which you shall proclaim at the appointed times”.

An essential truth about these holy convocations to understand is that they are a sacred assembly or mikrah. This word means a ‘dress rehearsal’. The children of Israel performed this ‘dress rehearsal’ for 1,500 years as a picture pointing them to their Messiah, Jesus Christ. Under the New Covenant in Jesus blood, both Messianic and gentile Christians take part in this dress rehearsal for Jesus second coming and the salvation of the Jews. Not surprisingly then, Jews were expected to travel to Jerusalem three times a year to keep them (Exodus 23:14-17 and Deuteronomy 16:16).

There are three feast seasons. The first is Passover (pesach). The second is Pentecost (Shavout) and the third is Tabernacles (Succot). They portrayed and represented the major encounters between God and the children of Israel. There are seven feasts in the three seasons, and they represent seven steps in the believer's walk with God. The seven feasts these are:

 Passover, Unleavened bread and firstfruits: Spring
 Pentecost: Early summer
 Tabernacles, trumpets and Atonement (Yom Kippur): Autumn

This year 2020 has already seen the first four feasts celebrated leaving the three autumn feasts yet to be celebrated. The first, the Feast of Trumpets, is to begin on 1st Day of 7th month (Tishrei) i.e. 19th September. The second feast, that of Yom Kippur or Atonement, is set for 28th September being 10 days after the eve of Trumpets. The third feast in this trio is that of Tabernacles and this takes place on 15th day of Tishrei – Saturday 3rd October 2020.

Trumpets

The importance of this feast is that a fire offering is to be made to the Lord (Leviticus 23:24-25) as a shadow of the perfect sacrifice of Jesus made on the cross for all people and all time. The feast takes place after three months of no feasts during the summer months. The significance for us is that of the redemption of the Bride of Christ when he returns for her (1Corinthians 15:52; 1 Thessalonians 4:16) and after the harvest has been gathered in i.e. at the Rapture when the trumpet sounds and the dead in the Lord together with the living believers will be caught up with Him in the air and in an instant receive their resurrection bodies.

This feast will take place this year after 'lockdown' when the Church meeting places have been closed to worship, holy communion, fellowship and ministry. Legally churches could re-open from 4th July, but most have decided to delay having church services and, even then, without worship, shared communion and ministry! Never before have the church buildings been closed by the Government, not during the 1918 flu epidemic, the Great War, the Second World war. Israel is suffering too. The country of over nine million population and only 442 deaths (2% on closed cases and 1% on active cases – source Worldometer:

<https://www.worldometers.info/coronavirus/country/israel/>) and where recovery rates are 98%. Nevertheless, Israel is now suffering lawlessness and rioting over Covid19 despite having the best record of any nation except Vietnam.

The Day of Atonement (Yom Kippur)

This feast is also marked by a trumpet call, this time it is a Jubilee trumpet. It is a powerful and symbolic feast of the 50th year of Jubilee (Leviticus 25) and marks the moment when properties were restored to their original owners and slaves were freed from their masters. Israelites will be set free from poverty and hardship, oppression and injustice. The Jubilee system is in sharp contrast to the world system of wealth accumulation. It also recognises that the Land of Israel belongs permanently to the Lord and is allotted to the people for their inheritance and them for His (Exodus 15:17-18). This feast obviously points to the Second Coming of the Lord to save and restore His people Israel.

God's prophetic time calendar points to this being seven years after the Rapture and at the end of the Tribulation period, in fulfilment of Daniel's 'sevens' (Daniel 9)

Tabernacles

This feast has such wonderful links with Palm Sunday (Leviticus 23:40 tells the Jewish men to wave Palm branches before the Lord). Rejoicing with Palm branches, willow and myrtle is symbolic of welcoming the coming King. The saints in heaven will wave palm branches before the Lord (Revelation 7:9-10). It reminds us today of His coming to establish His millennium kingdom when He will rule and reign victoriously.

If you want to know much more of the background and history of these feasts read Dr Richard Booker's book "Celebrating Jesus in the Biblical Feasts" and Rosemary Bamber's excellent devotional "In Time with God". If you want to know more about the Tribulation period, the Second Coming and the Final Judgement then see "God's Glorious Promise" written by myself and Roger French.

WAR ON THE SAINTS

We live in very challenging and evil times. This is the basic fact. As we have battled the coronavirus pandemic - which so far has seen going on 46,000 deaths in the UK and 620,000 worldwide - almost unbelievably and often without any publicity, we have seen a renewed push to decriminalise abortion, putting it on a par with contraception by making it available to all women on demand; the consolidation of emergency measures allowing self-administered home abortion; the passing into law of no-fault, virtually 'on request', divorce; and expressed 100% commitment by the government to ensure all children, from age 3, learn about same sex relationships and gender diversity, and that 'heteronormativity' is just one option among many, all of which are equally good. (See VfJUK web site for more details)

Perhaps even more startlingly, the Church of all denominations seems not just to go along with, but actively endorse, these demonic policies, which can only serve to tighten the stranglehold of chaos so that we become, as a nation, complicit in our own destruction. And this at base is what this is all about – the destruction not just of society, but the obliteration of Christianity ... and ultimately, the killing of the human race.

We are witness to a declaration of war by the devil on God. It is a war the devil cannot win; even when he remains unfettered during the Tribulation period.

It is entirely wrong to describe acceptance of these policies as 'tolerance', nor is it Christian compassion. Rather, it is taking the knee to Satan – acknowledging his malign rule and rejecting God. It is the same battle that began in the garden of Eden when satan whispered seductively to Eve, 'You are gods... you can have it all.' And now, as then, to succumb and approve such policies is to become enslaved to sin.

It was for freedom that Christ has set us free! The innocent Christ died on the cross and in that decisive battle, Jesus once and for all broke the hold of Satan over us. He restored men and women to a relationship with God for which we had been created. But it is an offer we must accept; and, while we await the Lord's return in glory, the devil still prowls the earth, and men and women remain vulnerable. Christ's gift of Salvation is precisely that – a gift that we can choose whether to accept, because, unlike the devil, God never compels us. Rather, we are to choose actively to follow God, as opposed to simply acquiescing to follow where the devil leads; The tragedy today is that so many have chosen the way of death – and the Church remains silent.

The tragedy of Tradition over Biblical Church

The 'Lockdown' imposed upon Christian Church meetings by the Government due to Covid 19, has, it seems to me, given us time and the inclination to have a good long look at why we 'do' church the way we do in our separate denominations and house churches. The emerging popularity of digital platforms like Zoom to host 'church' has also shown the weakness of our worship, prayer, and body ministry. As the Churches re-open this month, the restrictions on singing, communion, fellowship and ministry will also serve to show how out of touch with Spirit-filled and led worship we are and even, how absent God appears during these meetings!

It seems to me to be a crucial time for the Church to find out about its 'Head' and Saviour and to know Him and His Word and to become truly born-again by the Holy Spirit. It is only by being 'sealed in the Spirit' that we shall enter heaven (Ephesians 1:14). It is now or never to become sanctified, consecrated and set apart for the glory of God and the privilege of knowing Him.

David Hathaway, a brave and faithful servant of God for over 70 years, has found the 'Lockdown' to be a time of hearing the call of God for the Church in the UK and intends to respond to it by calling the whole church to pray and to bring the Government's attention to the spiritual attack on the Church. (pastoral letter July 2020) I hope that the Church will support Him in his non-denominational vision.

Biblical or not?

I do hope that the following extracts taken from Paul Luckhursts' review of 'Biblical Church' by Beresford Job (Bethany Publishing, 2007) will help us to hear what the Lord is saying to us about our Church today and understand how insidious is the power of tradition. Paul writes.....

“This excellent book challenges the traditional way that Christians do ‘church’ and explains what should be in place instead. The author aims to show that the church-going practices Christians generally observe are based upon teachings that have little or nothing to do with the Bible. Rather, they originated with men who led the Church after the Apostles were dead and the writings of the New Testament had been completed. Though now over ten years old, this remains another useful resource for Christians who are currently ‘out of church’ – or who are seeking to rethink their current approach to church.

The book is in three parts. The first, called Traditions, starts by reviewing the Jewish ‘traditions of the elders’, which Jesus opposed. The author draws heavily on the teaching of others in these early chapters and the material may be familiar to many, but it forms a necessary background to his argument: that we have made the same mistakes, by building our own church traditions.

In Chapter 8, he considers common objections to his argument: God still seems to bless such churches. The Holy Spirit is still at work. So why cause trouble and upset people? Here the author offers an honest assessment of these questions but remains adamant that the status quo means we are missing out on God's best!

Part Two, entitled Biblical Church, is more positive in outlook and considers in detail what biblical church should look like. The author repeatedly stresses that he is not drawing a contrast between true and false churches, but between biblical and unbiblical practices.

He highlights four key areas that, for him, make up the minimum for a biblical church:

- Leadership should reflect that in Acts, with elders as overseers, not a ruling hierarchy;
- Home meetings are best for developing fellowship and deep relationships; Worship should be led by the Spirit and reflect the unity of the Body of Christ, and
- The Lord's Supper should be celebrated with a proper meal, not just a quick snack of tokens.
- Like Steve Maltz's work on Hebraic church, Job emphasises function over form. Get the function right and the correct form of church practice will emerge.

Job acknowledges that biblical churches are not guaranteed to be problem-free. They can still be unloving or undisciplined. But if they have the right 'shape' then there is greater opportunity for the Lord to change people.

Part Three brings something new and special to the growing debate on 'out of church' Christianity: If you do want to change, how do you go about it?

Job is down-to-earth and practical, not romantic: he explains that for Christians wanting to pursue radical transformation in their church practice, it is important to take it slowly and learn to walk before you can run, learning to listen to others and growing in patience.

"Teach me to do your will, for you are my God; may your good Spirit lead me on level ground."(Psalm 143:10)

Today, the battle for truth has never been sharper, nor has there been a greater need for Bible-believing Christians to stand together and to exercise godly discernment. It is not only the political decisions of our Government to redefine 'Equality' to mean the exclusion of the Judeo-Christian faith from our national life but the weakness of the Churches to resist the immoral and unethical changes in our laws and to be silent about those clear sinful choices that are now regarded as 'un sinful' by virtue of EU?UK laws over the past twenty years.

CORONAVIRUS UPDATE

Postscript to Track & Trace

The Mail Online on 21st July The NHS track-and the news that the Government's T&T App could be illegal. On the same day in the Telegraph, was this small article hidden away at the bottom of page 7.- "trace app considered vital to getting the UK out of coronavirus lockdown could be illegal and may not work abroad, experts warned today. The software will be tested on the Isle of Wight from this morning onwards - but there are growing concerns about its privacy settings and why the Government shunned a Google-Apple alternative adopted by other countries. Health Secretary Matt Hancock has decided the first public tests on their contact tracing software would begin on the self-contained island of 140,000 people, with NHS and council staff the first to be given access - and has insisted they would enjoy 'high privacy'.

Postscript to Origins of Coronavirus and scientific claim of human involvement

Vaccines and Treatments for COVID-19 taken from HEALTHLINE NEWS Written by Shawn Radcliffe — Fact checked by Jennifer Chesak — Updated on July 10, 2020

With confirmed COVID-19 cases worldwide surpassing 16.7 million and deaths at 650,000 (Worldometer 28/7/20) with further increases expected, scientists are pushing forward with efforts to develop vaccines and treatments to slow the pandemic and lessen the disease's damage. Some of the earliest treatments will likely be drugs that are already approved for other conditions or have been tested on other viruses. "People are looking into whether existing antivirals might work or whether new drugs could be developed to try to tackle the virus," said Dr. Bruce Y. Lee, a professor at the CUNY Graduate School of Public Health & Health Policy.

Searching for effective treatments

Drug development is sometimes described as a pipeline, with compounds moving from early laboratory development to laboratory and animal testing to clinical trials in people.

It can take a decade or more for a new compound to go from initial discovery to the marketplace. Many compounds never even make it that far.

That's why many medications being eyed as potential treatments for COVID-19 are drugs that already exist.

In a review in the British Journal of Pharmacology, scientists from the United Kingdom called for wider screening of existing drugs to see if they might work against the new coronavirus.

They identified three stages of infection at which the virus could be targeted: (i) keeping the virus from entering our cells,

(ii) preventing it from replicating inside the cells, and

(iii) minimizing the damage that the virus does to the organs.

Many of the drugs being developed or tested for COVID-19 are antivirals. These would target the virus in people who already have an infection.

Lee says antivirals work better if you administer them sooner, "before the virus has a chance to multiply significantly." And also before the virus has caused significant damage to the body, such as to the lungs or other tissues.

Dr. Robert Amler, dean of the School of Health Sciences and Practice at New York Medical College and a former chief medical officer at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry (ATSDR), says both antivirals and vaccines will be valuable tools in combating COVID-19.

However, he told Healthline that "antivirals are likely to be developed and approved before a vaccine, which typically takes longer."

Antivirals

Remdesivir

Developed a decade ago, this drug failed in clinical trials against Ebola in 2014. But it was found to be generally safe in people. Research with MERS, a disease caused by a different coronavirus, showed that the drug blocked the virus from replicating.

The drug is being tested in many COVID-19 clinical trials around the world. This includes studies in which remdesivir is being administered alongside other drugs, such as the anti-inflammatory drug baricitinib. The drug is also being tested in children with moderate to severe COVID-19.

In late April, the drug's manufacturer, Gilead Sciences, announced one of its trials had been "terminated" due to low enrollment. Gilead officials said the results of that trial had been "inconclusive" when it was ended.

In early June, federal officials announced their supply of remdesivir will run out by the end of June. Gilead is ramping up production, but it's unclear how much of the drug will be available this summer.

In mid-July, Gilead officials announced results from an ongoing phase III trial of remdesivir. They said the drug was "associated with an improvement in clinical recovery and a 62 percent reduction in the risk of mortality compared with standard of care.” They called it an “important finding that requires confirmation in prospective clinical trials.”

(Israeli Cyber Experts Expose Iranians Behind Plot to Hack Corona Drug Maker A report from United with Israel on 18th July revealed that Hackers linked to Iran targeted the U.S. pharmaceutical company Gilead Sciences recently trying to gain access to the company working on cures for the COVID-19 virus.)

Arbidol

This antiviral was tested along with the drug lopinavir/ritonavir as a treatment for COVID-19. Researchers reported in mid-April that the two drugs didn’t improve the clinical outcomes for people hospitalized with mild to moderate cases of COVID-19.

EIDD-2801

This drug was created by scientists at a non-profit biotech company owned by Emory University. Research in mice has shown that it can reduce replication of multiple coronaviruses, including SARS-CoV-2. Pharmaceutical company Merck and Ridgeback Biotherapeutics LP signed an agreement in May to develop this drug. It’s already being tested in a clinical trial in the United Kingdom.

Unlike remdesivir, EIDD-2801 can be taken orally, which would make it available to a larger number of people.

Favipiravir

This drug is approved in some countries outside the United States to treat influenza. Some reports from China suggest it may work as a treatment for COVID-19. These results, though, haven’t been published yet.

Japan, where the medication is made, is sending the drug to 43 countries for clinical trial testing in people with mild or moderate COVID-19. Canadian researchers are testing to see whether the drug can help fight outbreaks in long-term care homes.

Kaletra

This is a combination of two drugs — lopinavir and ritonavir — that work against HIV. Clinical trials are being done to see whether it also works against SARS-CoV-2.

In a study, published May 7 in the New England Journal of Medicine, found that the drug combination wasn’t effective for people with severe COVID-19. But another study found that people who were given lopinavir/ritonavir along with two other drugs — ribavirin and interferon beta-1b — took less time to clear the virus from their body. This study was published May 8 in The Lancet.

Merimepodib (VX-497)

This drug developed by ViralClear Pharmaceuticals Inc. has been shown previously to have antiviral and immune-suppressing effects. It was tested against hepatitis C but had only modest effects.

The company is running a phase II trial of this drug. People with advanced COVID-19 will be randomized to receive either merimepodib with Remdesivir, or Remdesivir plus a placebo. The company hopes to have results by late summer of this year.

Other treatments

Scientists are also looking at other ways to target the virus or treat the complications of COVID-19. Among them is ibuprofen.

Monoclonal antibodies

These drugs trigger the immune system to attack the virus. Like antibodies made by the body's immune system, these laboratory-made molecules target a specific invader, such as SARS-CoV-2.

The small biotech company Sorrento Therapeutics announced it has an antibody drug that has been effective in early testing in blocking SARS-CoV-2. The company says the drug could potentially be used to treat people with COVID-19 as well as help prevent infection.

Hydroxychloroquine and chloroquine

These drugs received emergency use authorization from the FDA at the end of March. On June 15, the FDA revoked that authorization, citing studies that indicated hydroxychloroquine didn't significantly help people with COVID-19 and may have caused serious health risks.

At the time of the FDA authorization in March, manufacturer Novartis donated about 30 million doses of hydroxychloroquine and 1 million doses of chloroquine to the nation's existing Strategic National Stockpile. The United States is now left with 63 million doses of hydroxychloroquine and 2 million doses of chloroquine in its emergency stockpile.

In late June, British officials announced they would restart a global clinical trial on hydroxychloroquine and chloroquine.

Vaccines

A vaccine is designed to protect people before they're exposed to a virus — in this case, the new coronavirus SARS-CoV-2.

A vaccine basically trains the immune system to recognize and attack the virus when it encounters it.

Vaccines protect both the person who's vaccinated and the community. Viruses can't infect people who are vaccinated, which means vaccinated people can't pass the virus to others. This is known as herd immunity. Many groups are working on potential COVID-19 vaccines, with several backed by the non-profit Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations (CEPI).

There are more than 100 projects around the world centred on the development of a COVID-19 vaccine. As of May 11, eight candidate vaccines were being tested in clinical trials in people.

An official at the National Institutes of Health said in mid-May that large-scale testing could begin in July, with a vaccine potentially available by January.

Other experts say the more likely timeline is summer or fall 2021. Here's a look at some of the projects:

Moderna. In March, the company began testing its messenger RNA (mRNA) vaccine in a phase I clinical trial in Seattle, Washington. In mid-May, the company announced the vaccine had produced antibodies in all 45 trial participants in this initial clinical phase. The company expects to begin a phase III clinical trial in July. The FDA also agreed to fast-track regulatory review of this vaccine if it succeeds in a phase III clinical trial. United with Israel have announced in their online news on 28th July 2020 that former Israel Defence Forces medic, Tal Zaks, who is now the chief medical officer of Moderna expects to produce billions of vaccines next year. Moderna's vaccine relies on a technology using "messenger RNA," which Zaks described as "the software of life." The New York Times reported June 3 that Moderna would be one of five companies chosen as part of the Trump administration's "warp speed" project to test and deploy a vaccine that would protect against the novel coronavirus. In mid-May, the company announced positive results of an eight-person human trial.

Inovio. When COVID-19 appeared in December, the company had already been working on a DNA vaccine for MERS. This allowed the company to quickly develop a potential COVID-19 vaccine. Company officials announced at the end of April that it had enrolled 40 healthy volunteers in its phase I clinical trial. It's preparing to start a phase II/III clinical trial this summer.

University of Oxford in England. A clinical trial with more than 500 participants began in late April. Oxford officials said the potential vaccine has an 80 percent chance for success and could be available as early as September. The university has partnered with pharmaceutical company AstraZeneca. The company reported in mid-May the vaccine was effective against COVID-19 and The company expects to begin a late-stage clinical trial by the middle of this year. Officials said in mid-May that if the clinical trial is successful, they could deliver 30 million doses by September.

University of Queensland in Australia. Researchers are developing a vaccine by growing viral proteins in cell cultures. They began preclinical testing stages in early April. The phase I trial in people will begin in early July.

Pharmaceutical companies. Johnson & Johnson and Sanofi are both working on a vaccine of their own. Johnson & Johnson announced it will begin early stage human clinical trials in July. Pfizer has also teamed up with German biotech company BioNTech to develop a vaccine. Advances in genetic sequencing and other technological developments have sped up some of the earlier laboratory work for vaccine development.

Clinical trial stages

Phase I. The drug is given to a small number of healthy people and people with a disease to look for side effects and figure out the best dose.

Phase II. The drug is given to several hundred people who have the disease, looking to see whether it works and if there are any side effects that weren't caught during the initial testing.

Phase III. In this large-scale trial, the drug is given to several hundred or even up to 3,000 people. A similar group of people take a placebo, or inactive compound. The trial is usually randomized and can take 1 to 4 years. This stage provides the best evidence of how the drug works and the most common side effects.

Phase IV. Drugs that are approved for use undergo continued monitoring to make sure there are no other side effects, especially serious or long-term ones.

More virologists and microbiologists speak out about the 'man-made' virus.

Many more eminent scientists and research fellows have started to speak out on Social Media platforms, YouTube and in scientific papers about the origins of the Virus and the human construction of the Covid19 virus.

Professor Yuen Kwok-yung a leading microbiologist told Chinese Authorities on 12th January that he suspected human to human transmission of Covid 19 but his warnings were not made public until January 19th. He had diagnosed a family of seven with Covid 700miles from Wuhan after one or two of the family had been there. The professor suspected that there was a cover-up by the authorities and when he visited the Huanan food market everything had been cleaned down causing him to comment "the crimes scene is already disturbed". Professor Yuen's claims were backed up by experts in nearby Taiwan. The BBC Panorama programme and the Telegraph report (28th July) said that the testimonies dovetail with AP story in April that Chinese Officials knew in January that they were facing a pandemic.

Professor Dr Tasuku Honjo, The Japanese professor of physiology or medicine, caused a sensation today in the media by saying that the corona virus is not natural. "If it is natural, it will not have affected the whole world like that. Because, depending on the nature, the temperature is different in different countries. if it were natural, it would only have affected countries with the same temperature as China. instead, it spreads to a country like Switzerland, the same way it spreads to desert areas. whereas if it were natural, it would have spread in cold places, but would have died in hot places. I have done 40 years of research on animals and viruses. It is not natural. It is manufactured and the virus is completely artificial. I have been working for 4 years in the Wuhan laboratory in China. I know all the staff of this laboratory well. I called them all after the Corona accident, but, all of their phones have been dead for 3 months. It is now understood that all of these laboratory technicians are dead.

Based on all of my knowledge and research to date, I can say this with 100% confidence that Corona is not natural. It did not come from bats. China made it. If what I say today turns out to be false now or even after I die, the government can withdraw my Nobel Prize. But China is lying and this truth will one day be revealed to all."

Professor Tasuku Honjo's YouTube video was taken down very quickly and since then he has publicly denied making the above statement. [Ed]

Dr Michael Levitt (Professor of Structural Biology at the Stanford School of Medicine and Nobel Prize Winner in Chemistry) has stated that the WHO exaggerates Covid deaths and that the true deaths are only 50% more than flu deaths. He analysed the death rates on the Diamond Princess Covid epidemic and found that only 1 in 1000 died on the boat. He feels that what analysis of what happened on the Diamond Princess would have given WHO the best method to combat the virus, in particular for older people. He believes that WHO approach afterwards became very important for political reasons.

Dr Alan Preston (Sc.D, Former Professor of Epidemiology & Biostatistics, Texas A&M) Maintains that the fatality rates being used by governments are wrong and overstated because they use prevalence statistics and not actual fatalities.

Sen Scott Jensen MD (Family Physician – Rep Minnesota) raised questions about the death rate figures saying that in USA they are 0.1% and that death certificate had been found to be false. He also raised the concern about contract tracing due to the involuntary nature of it and the subsequent increase in personal surveillance.

Dr Michael Ruizen (American anesthesiologist and internist, and the chief wellness officer at the Cleveland Clinic). He has raised great concerns over the lack of protection for over 70's in nursing homes and clinics.

Dr. Artin Massihi, MD (Emergency Medicine Specialist in Bakersfield, CA) He maintains the Covid19 virus is similar to flu and that lockdown does not make much, if any difference to the spread of the disease. His colleague Dr Daniel Erickson shared the same view in their Covid briefing on youtube. The comparison between the four countries that did not have lockdown and the countries that did is startling. The infections and death rates in the countries that did not have lockdown are significantly lower than those that did. (See Tony Robbins – The Truth about Mortality Rates)

The four countries that did not shut down were Sweden, Thailand, Japan and Belarus

Dr Li Meng Yan PhD Chinese virologist who fled from Hong Kong to USA to escape death from China whom she says covered up the Wuhan Institute development on bioweapon Covid19. She has taken evidence from her research to the USA for checking.

Dr Carrie Madej an experienced medical doctor and researcher published her findings about Covid19 on YouTube and highlighted DNA manipulation and AI links that alter the human DNA. RUSSIAN AND CHINESE CYBER ATTACKS ON UK AND USA SINCE OCTOBER 2019

Bear Definition and Meaning

(1 Samuel 17:34 ; 2 Samuel 17:8) The Syrian bear, Ursus syriacus, which is without doubt the animal mentioned in the Bible, is still found on the higher mountains ...

The Russian Bear and the End Times (taken from an article UCG.org / World News and Prophecy / Out of Hibernation: The Russian Bear the Russian bear has emerged from hibernation. It is not the defeated Cold War relic of the past. And its political, economic and military resurgence will likely have major prophetic significance in events leading to Jesus Christ's return.

The Bible reveals that at the time of the end, during the Great Tribulation, the world will be dominated by a commercial, political and military union of 10 leaders centred in Europe that combine power with the "beast" for a short period of time (Revelation 17:12-14). This "beast" power will wield such tremendous military might that the whole world will question, "Who is able to make war with him?" (Revelation 13:4).

The prophet Daniel refers to this power as the "king of the North" (Daniel 11:40). He will sweep down with major military force, occupying Jerusalem and much of the Middle East in response to aggressive actions by the king of the South (verses 40-43). This dramatic military move rallies a massive counterforce both east and north of Jerusalem. "But news from the east and the north shall trouble him" (verse 44). Some translations render "trouble" as "alarm" or "frighten him" (English Standard Version, Good News Bible and Jewish Publication Society). East of Jerusalem is China, India, and many nations east of the Euphrates River that will likely coalesce into a troubling and alarming eastern military alliance.

Russia lies to the north of Jerusalem. Moscow is due north of Jerusalem. Russia will be involved in the invasion of Israel (WW3) as described in Ezekiel 38 and Revelation 6:3-4. It will then be involved in the Gog/Magog war at the Second Coming (Revelation 20:6-10; Ezekiel 38 & 39 and Jeremiah 31:31-34).

The rise of the Russian bear is destined to have a major impact on these end-time events leading to Christ's return.

The Chinese Dragon

The aims of China are world domination and the methods by which it is trying to achieve this are at present being investigated by world governments. China has an extraordinarily strong hold over Western nations through its investments, loans and student populations studying and working in western university research departments. China's record on human rights is now worse than ever as it has cracked down on its own people and particularly on the Uighurs Muslims, an ethnic group found mainly in Xinjiang. The Telegraph reported the latest atrocities on 10th July commenting that China has shown its contempt for international law with its actions in Hong Kong, but its crimes in Xinjiang are on a much greater scale. In Biblical terms, The serpent was a symbol of evil power and chaos from the underworld as well as a symbol of fertility, life and healing. נח Nāḥāš, Hebrew for "snake", is also associated with divination, including the verb form meaning "to practice divination or fortune-telling"(source en.wikipedia.org). Chinese State hackers are active 24/7 stealing secrets and entering firewalls to gain information on state, industry, social and political movements. They are, like Russia, also involved in cyber 'active measures' sowing fake and false news and trying to influence societal thinking and reaction to current events.

Currently China and Russia are involved in joint manoeuvres and are seeking control of the Security Council.

Before the appearance of the Serpent in Gen 3, we see the Hebrew word "Tanneen". The interesting thing about this word is that it appears in the Scriptures 23 times, of which it is translated as "Whale" 3 times, as "Serpent" 3 times and as "Dragon" 17 times.

Gen 1:21 And God created great whales(H8577), and every living creature that moveth, which the waters brought forth abundantly, after their kind, and every winged fowl after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

Exo 7:9,10 When Pharaoh shall speak unto you, saying, Shew a miracle for you: then thou shalt say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and cast it before Pharaoh, and it shall become a serpent(H8577). And Moses and Aaron went in unto Pharaoh, and they did so as the LORD had commanded: and Aaron cast down his rod before Pharaoh, and before his servants, and it became a serpent(H8577).

THE GREAT AWAKENING!

No not the Johnathan Edwards Revival but misleading deception aimed at Christians by a pseudo military intel group called Qanon that started online publicity on October 2017. Its aim is to alert the general human population to the way that global power structures have been subjugating people for years. Unfortunately, all it is doing is dividing the body of Christ, dividing families and threatening marriages. This can't be of the Lord – See Ezekiel 33:1-9 or watch JD Farag Youtube Prophecy Update 19th July 2020.
